Succession Duties Handicap Visitors Anxious to Settle

Mr. E. C. Warren Believes Abolition of Duties Would Be Followed by Increase in Number of Homes—Present System Makes Alien Residents Pay Substantial Premium

Inheritance Tax Issue Was Tackled in Florida

IN the various discussions concerning prosperity or its opposite condition both locally and provincially, the question of succession duties and income tax and their effect on the entry of outside wealth into British Columbia has seldom been touched. As it is understood, the matter is coming before the Provincial Legislature at its forthcoming session, The Colonist has sought the opinion of a number of residents who by reason of their own experiences since coming here have had special reason to study the subject closely. One of the best known and best informed of these gentlemen is Mr. E. C. Warren, of "Pirwood Forest," Sooke, one of the largest estates on Vancouver Island. Mr. Warren came here five years ago from Florida, and although he had no intention of visiting the Island in any but the customary casual tourist fashion, he and his family liked it so much that they decided to remain and make their home here. They are still delighted with the place, from a residential standpoint, and are probably among Victoria's most enthusiastic admirers in all that appertains to climate and other natural advantages.

"But you have, in the succession duties in existence here, one of the principal deterrents to many wealthy people who might otherwise come here to establish a domicile and invest their capital in the development of your splendid natural resources," he told "The Colonist" representative who sought his views.

"I believe that the abolition of the succession duty would be followed by a very definite increase in the number of people who would establish homes here and make investments here. I have been here more than five years. I believe it is well known that I have given some consideration to these matters, and consequently many visitors to the city who are contemplating investment here have been—and are being—sent to me for information on taxation and other conditions affecting residence of aliens here."

BAD IMPRESSION
"The most prominent question in their minds, the one that affects their decision most strongly, is this one of succession duty. And, to be quite truthful, I find myself compelled to advise (as I did only this morning to a visitor who was sent to me) the taking out of Canadian insurance in sufficient amount to protect one's estate against the incidence of succession duty."

Mr. Warren felt certain that such a tip, given even in the friendliest spirit, would constitute a direct premium upon residence here and give the prospective resident an unfavorable impression of the conditions under which the Government would allow him to make his home in British Columbia. In other words, it meant that the Government intended to make alien residents pay a substantial premium for the privilege of making their home in British Columbia.

Captain Mackenzie Toasts Memory of Burns Before Scottish Gathering Here

"WHETHER Scottish-born or of Scottish lineage, our toast tonight is not for a great scientist, an erudite scholar or a renowned statesman, but to a simple ploughman born some two miles from the little town of Ayr," were the words used by Captain Ian Mackenzie, M.P.P., in opening his address on "The Immortal Memory of Robert Burns" at the annual dinner of the Victoria Burns Club, held in the Chamber of Commerce dining-room last evening.

"The master orator of all time, Lord Rosebery, paying tribute to Scotland's immortal bard at his centenary some years ago said, 'It is, it must be, a source of joy and pride to see our champion Scotsman receive the honor and admiration and affection of humanity, to see as I have seen this morning, the long processions bringing homage and tribute to the conquering dead. But these have only been signs and symptoms of world-wide reverence and devotion. That generous and immortal soul pervades the untold today. In the humming city, or the crowd of men in the backwoods, and in the swamp, where the sentinel pines the black frontier or the sailor smokes his evening pipe, or where above all the farmer and his men pursue their toil, whether under the Stars and Stripes or under the Union Jack, the thought and sympathy of men are directed to Robert Burns.'"

The incidents of the poet's life were too well known to be recalled, the speaker continued. The chill winds had buffeted him through the mountains, and the speaker continued. The chill winds had buffeted him through the mountains, and the speaker continued.

Triangle Route Of C.N.R. Calls For Fast Time

Plans of the Canadian National Steamship line for the establishment of triangle service between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle on July 28 with the St. Prince powerboat, now being built at Birkenhead.

The new vessel will be 384 feet six inches long, fifty-seven feet in beam, with a maximum load draft of sixteen feet six inches. She will be capable of carrying 1,500 deck passengers and will have berths for about 404. Reconstruction work costing about $200,000 is expected to start on the Canadian National docks in the Inner Harbor within two weeks' time.

It is interesting to note that the new vessel will make the voyage from Vancouver to Victoria in three hours and forty-five minutes and from Victoria to Seattle in three hours and one-half, the fastest schedule yet attempted.

Whistling Swan Joins Domestic Swans at Lake

The domestic swans at Elk Lake, which have succeeded in their new sanctuary since removal from Beacon Hill, have a strange visitor from the wilderness, the flock being joined by a whistling swan, whose markings prove his distinctive type.

The whistling swan, a member of the international known church organ manufacturing firm of Casavant Freres, died at her home yesterday, aged seventy-seven. She was a niece of Louis Joseph Papineau, who took an active part in the Rebellion of 1837.

GOVERNMENT LEGISLATION IS PREPARED

Ministers Will Face House for Second Time on Tuesday With Advantages of Matured Experience

ROAD PROGRAMME TO BE IMPORTANT

Taxation Relief to Be Salient Objective of Session—Status of P.G.E. Railway Survey

MORE than special interest attaches to the Legislative session which opens on Tuesday with appropriate ceremony. This is due to the fact that the members of the Government have had in the past twelve months the opportunity to acquaint themselves with the situation throughout the province, which was impossible for them to have done in the short time intervening between taking over the administration of affairs, in August, 1928, and the summoning of the 1929 session.

Tuesday will be given over to the opening of the actual business which will not be reached until Wednesday afternoon, when the Address will come in for consideration, formally introduced by the mover and second, Colonel Nelson Spencer and Dr. L. E. Borden, who propose and address in reply to that of His Honor.

The first week will undoubtedly be taken up with the debate on the Address. The ministers, it is announced, have their prospective legislation well in hand, and there should be little delay in getting it before the House.

PUBLIC WORKS

The Department of Public Works, which is the big spending department of the Government, will have a very comprehensive programme, it is announced. Hon. N. S. Loughheed, early in the Fall, made a tour of the greater part of the province.

In connection with the road work, a practice is followed of making the auto licences and gas taxes maintain a very considerable portion of the work. This policy will be continued, but the demand from various bodies, such as the automobile clubs and farmers' organizations, for an increased tax, renders it possible that the gas tax may be raised to 5 cents a gallon. This will materially increase the amount available for new roads.

Although no progress was reported after the Franco-Italian discussion, conference circles will undoubtedly be before the Legislature in some form or other. Premier Talmie, while impressed with the importance of such a road, has declared that its construction, if undertaken, must not take away from the amount required for the Small Islands.

AGREEMENT ON RAILWAY LANDS SCRUTINIZED

Hon. N. S. Loughheed Returns With View of Cabinet Submitting Simultaneous Legislation

CONTROL OF PARKS IN RAILWAY BELT

Hon. N. S. Loughheed, Minister of Public Works, is now hurrying westward from Ottawa with draft agreement covering the transfer of the railway lands from the Dominion to the province. If the document meets with the approval of Premier Talmie and his colleagues it is anticipated that legislation dealing with the transfer will be drafted and presented to the Legislature during the coming session simultaneously with similar legislation at Ottawa.

The negotiations which Mr. Loughheed has been carrying on, under advice from the Premier and his colleagues in Victoria, and in collaboration with the Deputy Attorney-General, Mr. O. C. Bass, K.C., and Mr. Henry Cathcart, Deputy Minister of Lands, were advanced to a stage where the Minister of Public Works was able to leave Ottawa on Friday night, a little earlier than had been expected by the Premier last evening.

In the absence of information to the contrary, it is anticipated that the Parliament Buildings that have reached a conclusion with the authorities in the East which is in line with the desires of the provincial cabinet.

FRANCE AND ITALY HOLD MANY TALKS

Close of First Week of Naval Conference Shows Delegates in Hopeful and Active Moods

MEDITERRANEAN MAIN OBSTACLE

(Canadian Press Cable)
LONDON, Jan. 25.—An important conference between Premier Tardieu, of France, and Foreign Minister Grandi, of Italy, from which came no word of progress toward the settlement of the Franco-Italian naval difficulties, tonight wound up the first week of the Five Power Naval Disarmament Conference.

The Franco-Italian situation dominated today's proceedings among the delegates, who are still struggling to find a suitable background for staging their naval disarmament programme.

While the French Premier and the Italian Foreign Minister talked tonight, the Japanese looked on cautiously from their London headquarters, and Prime Minister, Macdonald and Secretary of State, Stimson retired in the quiet of their country retreats.

NO PROGRESS REPORTED
Although no progress was reported after the Franco-Italian discussion, conference circles will undoubtedly be before the Legislature in some form or other. Premier Talmie, while impressed with the importance of such a road, has declared that its construction, if undertaken, must not take away from the amount required for the Small Islands.

Cutter Gets Food Supply Lone Island

PORTLAND, Jan. 25.—A thousand feet below the United States Army airplane piloted by Lieut. Calvert E. Bond, commander, Pearson Field, Vancouver, Wash., an Associated Press reporter, today saw the entire population of Pigeon Island, in the mid-Columbia River, race to the only wharf on the island and cheer lustily at the sight of the food supply cutter for both humans and animals, and between forty and fifty bags of mail.

Immediately following the Northwest was the lighthouse tender Rose, loaded with more than a hundred tons of foodstuffs for both humans and animals, and between forty and fifty bags of mail.

English Free Trade Centre Asking McKenna Duties to Be Kept

(British United Press)
LONDON, Jan. 25.—The Manchester citadel of free trade is wavering in its allegiance. Directors of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, which includes the leading traders and industrialists of the city, have decided to send a resolution to the Government asking retention of the present excise and import duties, which include the McKenna safeguarding duties.

This change in front has caused the liveliest interest throughout the country and has been seized upon by tariff reformers of all kinds as evidence that a change is coming over Britain. In this connection it is emphasized that this same Manchester Chamber of Commerce, which expressed strong opposition to the tariff duties when Mr. Churchill imposed them in 1925, is now in favor of retaining them.

Independence Day in India Likely to Be Marked With Unrest

Demonstrations of Nationalist Congress Today Called in Many Great Cities of Empire With Hoisting of Indian Flag and Demands for Severance From Great Britain and for Autonomy

Viceroy Stands Firmly on Offer of Dominion Status

(Associated Press Cable)
NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 25.—The principal North Indian stations tonight report that arrangements by the National Congress organizations for the celebration of Independence Day tomorrow were completed. The authorities everywhere had taken extensive precautions against disorder. The speech of Viceroy Lord Irwin today was believed to have given impetus to the Congress programme, but Moslems generally are not likely to participate. Lazor reported some excitement in Congress party circles, with people wearing Indian colors in their buttonholes, and the Indian flag itself hoisted over private buildings.

Plans for the celebrations at Amritsar, Lucknow, Calcutta, Allahabad, Meirut, Agra, Poona and elsewhere comprised processions, illuminations, hoisting the Indian flag, speeches and resolutions on the necessity of complete severance of connection with the British Government and of the attainment of independence by civil disobedience, nonpayment of taxes, but without violence, even under provocation.

USE INDIAN FLAG
CALCUTTA, India, Jan. 25.—The municipal corporation today adopted a resolution to hoist the Indian Nationalist flag on all municipal buildings and institutions tomorrow—Independence Day—and on all ceremonial occasions in the future.

SEATTLE, Jan. 25.—The United States Army Signal Corps operator at Fairbanks, Alaska, reported to headquarters here tonight that the Elison-Borland plane had been reported found. No details were given as to the location of the plane, but the message said that the plane was smashed up.

RUSSIAN RED ACTIVITY IS SHOWN AGAIN

Small Workers, Private Practitioners, Traders and Farmers Being Forced Into Collectivism

PEASANTS MADE TO RELINQUISH LANDS
By CARROLL BINDER
(Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service)
MOSCOW, U.S.S.R., Jan. 25.—The last vestiges of private enterprise are being rapidly exterminated throughout the entire Soviet Union, in conformity with the all-conquering advance of complete collectivization. The private traders are being blotted out with the same zeal as the Kulaks.

House handicraft workers, such as dressmakers, shoemakers and toy makers, can survive economically only when they join co-operative or collective groups of their craft. Lawyers may practice only in collectives, charging limited fees and dividing the proceeds.

Private medical practitioners are hardly likely to survive under the regulations proposed by the Commissariat of Health. All private hospitals will be liquidated within a month. Physicians connected with state hospitals and institutions, with the elaborate social insurance system means an over-whelming majority of the medical profession, will henceforth be prohibited from having private patients.

STORES TRADE ONLY
In other words, in exceedingly brief time the vast majority of the Soviet Union will be trading only at collective stores, using collectively produced articles and availing himself of collectively provided personal services. And for the disfranchised classes, such as the Nepmen (private traders), there is no future.

Moslems Killed In Fight With Hindu Faction

(Associated Press)
ALLAHABAD, India, Jan. 25.—Three Moslems were killed and twenty-two injured in a fight between Hindus and Moslems at Lor, a message from Gorakhpur said today. Fighting broke out during the election for chairman of the town area committee, in which a Hindu and a Mohammedan were rival candidates. Lor is in the Gorakhpur district of the United Provinces.

Diggers Rush In South Africa to Diamond Fields

(Associated Press)
JOHANNESBURG, S.A., Jan. 25.—More than 1,200 diggers participated yesterday in a rush on the ballou system, for the new diamond fields at Bruidesomkral, Transvaal. There are 212 claims, and each digger whose name was called under the ballot raced four miles across the veldt to stake the best claim.

Rich finds have been made on these fields, some diamonds being valued at $10,000 each. A week ago only two houses were standing in Bruidesomkral, now it is a small town of tin shanties.

Student Flyer Falls to Death From His Plane

SEATTLE, Jan. 25.—Frank Campbell, twenty-two, student flyer, was killed here today when he fell from his two-seater biplane while flying over the outskirts of the city. Eye-witnesses informed the coroner's office that Campbell apparently was flying upside down about 500 feet in the air when he fell out. Uncontrolled, the plane continued on for about half a mile, and crashed within a few feet of a group of houses, the witnesses said. The pilot, who took off from Boeing field about 3 o'clock, had forty hours of flying to his credit. He was training to become a licensed pilot.

REVISION OF VOTERS' LIST UNDER WAY

Applications to Be Registered May Be Made at Court House—Should Record Change of Address

REGISTRATION NOW PROCEEDING DAILY

Revision of the official list of persons entitled to vote for members of the Provincial Legislature in the election districts of Victoria City and Esquimalt is now under way at the Court House, with Mr. G. H. Mabon in charge. All persons wishing to insure for themselves the right to mark a ballot in one or other of these electoral districts at the next provincial election may apply for registration at the Court House between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. from Mondays to Fridays, inclusive, and between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Saturdays. The voters' list with its daily additions will also be open to public examination in the same place and at the same hours.

WHO ARE CONCERNED

It is not only those who have not before been enrolled as provincial voters in the electoral districts mentioned who are concerned in the revision and registration now proceeding. Those who were enrolled but who did not vote at the last provincial election are required to register in order that their names may not be struck off the list. Again, many persons have moved from one electoral district to another and are required to register for the district where they now reside. Others have moved from one place to another within the same electoral district and are required to give notification of their new street address, either by writing or in person.

WHO MAY REGISTER

Everyone is by law entitled to vote and to be registered on the list if he is:

- (a) A British subject, of the full age of twenty-one.
- (b) A resident in British Columbia of six months' standing.
- (c) A resident in the electoral district of one month's standing.

Naturalized British subjects have the same right to vote as those who are British subjects by birth. There are no fees or charges in connection with registering.

Two Bears and Caribou Secured With Single Shot

With one bullet to have secured three trophies, a grizzly, a black bear and a caribou, was the wonderful experience of a big game hunter and guide in the Quenel Lake district of the province, according to information which has reached Attorney-General Pooley. The story of the exploit was conveyed to Mr. Pooley by Mr. Bryan Williams, game commissioner of the province. A photograph of the caribou horns, and the two bear skins were also forwarded to him by Game Warden Robinson, Quenel.

Mr. Norman Thompson, a guide who takes big game hunters through the Quenel Lake district, was hunting a few weeks ago with a party of visitors when he noticed a set of caribou horns protruding from the snow. Advancing cautiously, because he feared trouble, Thompson started to investigate, but as he did so he heard an animal crashing through the brush nearby, and turned to find a grizzly charging at him. He fired at the monster, but he staggered on, falling dead only fifteen feet from the hunter. Thompson then found that the caribou had been killed by the grizzly and cashed, and with its carcass was the hide and skeleton of a black bear which had been too inquisitive, and it had also been killed and eaten. So powerful were the jaws of the grizzly that many of the bones of the black bear had been ground to small pieces, but his teeth were so blunt that the skin was not punctured.

Rebel Chief Is Overcome After Bloodless Win

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 25.—British authorities yesterday won a victory without a single casualty on either side over the rebel chief, Sekonela, of the Adjazi tribe, in the wildest part of Northern Transvaal. When the chief failed to reply to demands for surrender by armed police, an airplane of the South African force was sent to fly over the kraal, or native stronghold. The plane circled over the kraal and dropped bombs on either side as a warning, then dived over the native huts and set fire to them with another bomb.

EXPERIMENTAL FARM BURNS

NEW WESTMINSTER, Jan. 25.—Fraser Valley Manor Experimental Station, on the Pacific Highway, south of here, was destroyed by fire last night, causing a loss estimated at $10,000. The station was a one-story frame structure, 300 feet long and fifty feet wide.

On the eve of the second session of the Provincial Legislature, since Dr. S. F. Tolmie and the Conservatives of British Columbia secured power, the course of action of the Government is being watched with considerable interest. The leader of this Government has entrenched himself solidly in the hearts of the people of the province. He enjoys a personal popularity which has been accorded to no Premier since the days of the late Sir Richard McBride. Much of this popularity has been derived from bluff heartedness and bonhomie; from a willingness to mix with all classes of the people; from an open-handed manner of dealing with men and events, and from personal characteristics which appeal to British Columbians, and which, as well, have made Dr. Tolmie so widely known and so highly respected throughout the Dominion.

The present Premier has taken his task in the most serious vein. He has gone about the province determined to ascertain at first hand what are the needs of its various sections of inhabitants, with a single eye to finding out in what way provincial legislation can foster advancement. The cause of the general welfare has been the guiding one in every task to which he has set his hand. He has done all this in a cautious manner, determined that he will not be stampeded into any course of action until he first ascertains all its possible implications. This is illustrated in his handling of the Pacific Great Eastern problem. One thing he has already accomplished in this respect is of particular value to the future. He has succeeded in educating the people to a realization that in the railway there is an asset, that it is the highway ultimately to bring the wealth of the Pacific Ocean, and that there are areas contiguous to the road and to the route of its future construction that in their development will add immensely to the wealth of the province. He has dispelled the illusion, so long nurtured by The Vancouver Province and other interests, that the road constituted a "white elephant." He has done this by a policy of optimism in the future of British Columbia. The people now realize with him, and through his energetic and unceasing advocacy, that the Pacific Great Eastern can be made a factor of high importance in contributing to provincial development.

Another exhibition of political wisdom displayed by the Premier during the past eighteen months is his realization that improved transportation facilities are calculated to do more than anything else to promote prosperous conditions. There are better roads in the province now, and they are better maintained, than ever before in the history of British Columbia. In this programme of constantly improving highway transportation Dr. Tolmie has found a second source of enthusiasm and initiative in the person of Mr. N. S. Loughheed, his Minister of Public Works. It is admitted that, under the operation of the funds now available, only preliminary steps have as yet been taken for improvement and increased transportation. What has been done, however, is an earnest of high promise of the programme proposed under the new loan bill, with its complementary increased gasoline tax, to be devoted to building up a transportation system which cannot but give an impetus to a gathering tide of prosperity in British Columbia. Some indication of the programme devised has already been indicated in the policy of the taking over of arterial highways within organized districts. The first intimation of this was given in connection with the problems of Saanich. That municipality will have cause to bless the name of the present Government because of the improvements to its roads that are being projected. The same policy will be adopted elsewhere throughout the province.

Before launching the province on new policies Dr. Tolmie has taken the same course of fully informing himself and his Government of what the actual needs are and how they can be met in the most permanent way by provincial assistance. He is making haste slowly, a policy followed by all leaders who wish to contribute towards consolidating prosperity. In what has already been accomplished by his Government, and in what is projected, the Kamloops choice of the Conservatives for their leadership in provincial affairs has been amply justified and the people of the province deserve congratulations on having, at the first opportunity, given Dr. Tolmie the chance to prove his title to control of the affairs of British Columbia. One task above all others that he has been successful in accomplishing is that of putting an end to a wastage of public funds. Immediately on assuming office he called a halt to the spendthrift policy that had been pursued by his predecessors in office. For this he has earned public gratitude, and it is a policy that he intends to pursue steadfastly as long as he is in power. Dr. Tolmie and his Ministers can meet the Legislature in the session that opens on Tuesday with full confidence that the rectitude of the course they have pursued and the measures they have devised for the advancement of British Columbia have earned, and will continue to earn, public appreciation and support.

A CAPITAL LEVY

Strong support to the conception that British Columbia would derive undoubted advantages from the abolition of Succession Duties is contained in an interview with Mr. E. C. Warren, of Sooke, which we publish today. Mr. Warren sees in the operation here of this tax a deterrent to many wealthy persons making their homes in British Columbia and investing their capital in the province. He speaks from first-hand experience in the matter of how capital shifts away from a location where Succession Duties are in effect. He has had to furnish information regarding taxation to his friends who have contemplated coming here. The tax gives the prospective investor an unpleasant view of conditions. He is often enough deterred from coming, and this unpleasantness would, in large measure, be removed with the disappearance of the Succession Duties.

In Florida, where Mr. Warren used to live, Succession Duties were once in effect. A referendum was taken on the subject and as a result of this their abolition was decreed. There were both inheritance and succession taxes in Florida, so that the dual imposts fell on inheritors of estates. The removal of one of these led to a large influx of population, and people of the right type. This meant added revenue to the State Exchequer, and it is noteworthy that in some two years' time Florida was able to get rid of its bonded indebtedness and had $7,000,000 in cash in the treasury. Florida has, through abolishing Succession Duties, been able to increase its road-building programme, and do much in other ways towards promoting development and prosperity in the state.

As Mr. Warren says, Succession Duties or an inheritance tax can be described as a Socialistic measure. Whatever form this taxation takes it constitutes a capital levy. The abandonment of Succession Duties in British Columbia would be a move away from Socialistic legislation, and goodness knows it is full time that such a step was taken. There are few, if any, more popular moves at this time that could be achieved by the Provincial Government and Legislature.

PSYCHIATRY AND LOVE

Professor Heinrich Hertwein, psychiatrist of Germany, is seeking to revolutionize marriage by a process which would bring about the abolition of love as it is known today. The professor who is reputed to be a tower of strength in the enunciation of the science, is the author of many sweeping assertions. In one instance he remarks that "half the men and women of our time are dizzy with love and stagger through the world in a dazed condition which is produced by the sentimental bosh manufactured by drunken poets and insane lyricists." Thus practically the entire literary world is assailed, poets, like Shakespeare, Burns, Longfellow and Wordsworth, were merely drunk or insane when they wrote of the tender passion. That is the verdict of one of the leading psychiatrists of the time.

"Away with sentimentality in love" is Professor Hertwein's plea. He wants the scientific test of mating to supplant moonlight walks. Mere affection between two mortals of different sexes has nothing to do with happiness, if the German psychiatrist is to be believed. It is character and physique, as science determines, that should make a couple happy. He divides the human race into three types revealed by the "hidden soul life" of individuals. The types are "deer," "peasant" and "hunter." The "hunter" type and the "peasants" are hard-working materialists capable of strenuous achievement. The "deer" type is intellectual—dreamers, poets, artists. He sees no happiness whatever in a marriage between two persons who happen to belong to the same scientific division. In fact they abandon all hope of entering matrimony. The ideal marriage, according to the psychiatric conception, is between persons of opposing scientific types. In this, says the professor, "there will be no quarrels. All will be peace and harmony. The loveliest and brainiest children will issue from such unions. The human race will be the gainer." If there is to be marriage of opposing scientific types the professor does not say how selections are to be made, but the implication is that a committee of psychiatrists should dictate the process of mating among the human race. The first thing to be done is to abolish the "drunk and insane" practice of love-making. How this is to be done deponent saith not.

Quebec Evenement points out that Canada, owing to the climatic conditions, has reasonable unemployment of thousands. It suggests that it is a matter to which Provincial Legislatures should turn their attention. The unemployment situation in the country during the present winter constitutes a call to action but Provincial Governments continue to be apathetic, and Ottawa takes the attitude that unemployment is a matter for municipalities and provinces.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

"Man needs but little here below, nor needs that little long." Like almost everything else in this world, that ally old saying should be revised and brought up to date. The modern version should be: Man wants everything which belongs to some other man. Which, of course, is the creed of Communism and the ultimate object of Socialism.

We have been watching for several years the trend of political and economic thought on the Prairies of Canada. And all the time we have been watching we have been trying to account for the trend of political and economic thought there. So after mature consideration we have decided that there is something the matter with the people of the Prairies and that that something must be the Manitoba Free Press. For many years the people of the Prairies wanted reciprocal trade relations with the United States. The United States has consistently refused to respond to that demand, so the people of the Prairies have turned their attention to another great country with a very large population. They want immediate trade relations with Russia. They have passed a resolution demanding that the Government of Canada should reconsider its attitude towards Russia and resume political and business relations with the Soviet Government.

That is a peculiar resolution to pass considering that it was passed by a meeting of farmers and the treatment the farmers of Russia are receiving at the hands of the Soviet Government. Notwithstanding what has happened in Russia, there appears to be one class of people there which is fairly prosperous. Under any other form of Government than Sovietism, the prosperity of even one class of the community would be pleasing to the Government. If the British agriculturists were prosperous, all other classes in Britain would rejoice and the Government would be relieved of a heavy burden of anxiety. If the farmers of our Prairies had reaped an abundant harvest during the past season, all Canada would have been more prosperous than it is and there would not have been a problem of unemployment engaging the attention of the Provincial and Federal Governments.

But the prosperity of the Kulaks has aroused envy in the hearts of the members of the Russian Government. The Kulaks are the peasants who have lived upon the land for generations, are attached to it, and have made it produce in abundance. They are individualists and opposed to the principles and the practices of Communism. They believe in working the land and harvesting their crops from field to market. The Soviet Government, however, has decreed that the products of the land are common property and that all crops must be delivered to official representatives of the community for distribution amongst consumers. Quite a number of the successful farmers have resisted that demand and have been taken out and shot.

It appears that all the other industries of Russia are being conducted upon a community basis and only one thing remains to be done to crown the achievements of Sovietism. All the land save that held by the practical farmers has been confiscated. When the Kulaks have been evicted, shot or brought to their senses by transportation of some of them as "a horrible example" all the agricultural land of Russia will be common property and the communism of the country will be complete. Individualism will be as dead as Lenin. The Government will "hold all things in common" for the people, and there will be no incentive for the individual to excel in his business. Officials will determine the requirements of the people and all class distinctions will be abolished. Then of course there will be complete concord among the masses of the peculiar people of Russia. The fatherhood of the Great White Bear will be succeeded by the paternalism of Stalin, supported by the practical farmers who have been evicted, shot or brought to their senses by transportation of some of them as "a horrible example" all the agricultural land of Russia will be common property and the communism of the country will be complete. ## FRUITGROWERS OF PROVINCE TO MEET SHORTLY

Provincial Organization Will Have Special Interest This Year to Soft Fruit Men

ISLAND CROWERS TO ATTEND

The annual meeting of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association, which is to be held in the Hotel Vancouver this week, extending over Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, promises to be a most important one. This is so because of the fact that the question of the formation of a provincial-wide organization, under the provisions of the Produce Marketing Act, will come up, it is anticipated, at the meeting of the Berry Growers' section which will open on Wednesday.

Vancouver Island growers will be represented at this gathering and will carry to it the decision of the meeting, which was held at Royal Oak on Friday evening, which endorsed the idea of entering into such a proposition and having a committee of direction to look after the marketing of the whole British Columbia berry crop.

Mr. H. C. Oldfield is a member of the executive of the association; Mr. R. S. Twining will represent the Gordon Head growers, and Mr. Gilling the Saanich growers. The request has been made that Keating growers also be represented at the meeting.

Mr. J. A. Grant, markets commissioner for the province, will speak on Wednesday on the subject of "Organized Preparedness Necessary to Stabilize Prairie Markets."

Mrs. V. S. MacLachlan will speak on "Fruit Marketing and the Women's Institutes" on Thursday morning. Mr. F. M. Black, chairman of the Committee of Direction for the province, will also speak on the working of the Marketing Act on Thursday.

MILLIDGE ESTATE PROBATE ISSUED

Recent Fatal Automobile Accident at Duncan Is Recalled—Rider and Horse Killed

A recent tragedy is recalled by the issuance of probate last week in the Supreme Court for the estate of the late John Charles Millidge, who died at Duncan on October 31. A horse he was riding was struck by an automobile and Mr. Millidge was thrown, sustaining fatal injuries. The horse also was seriously injured and had to be shot as an act of mercy. A trial arising out of the accident is now before the courts.

The value of the estate was given as $1,328.

Probate issued also for the estate of Margaret Marie Caulfield, who died in Victoria on December 24, the value being sworn at $16,480.

Work on Australia's Murray River irrigation scheme, on which more than $35,000,000 has been spent, has been stopped because of the money shortage.

Much Curiosity Felt Over Attitude Of Canada at Conference

By HERBERT BAILEY
British United Press

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Canada's future part in the Five-Power Naval Conference today is a matter of speculation today in Empire and British circles. While Canada is recognized by the other Dominions' delegates as having the leadership in Empire affairs, the different Dominions are taking individual viewpoints.

The Canadian attitude at present is to protect Canadian interests and to promote the general purpose of the conference, but it is recognized that, should any difficulties develop between Britain and the United States, Canada's influence would immediately increase.

The Dominion is interested not only in her trade routes but also in Anglo-American friendship and, in the event of anything menacing this friendship, the Canadian representatives, the British United Press understands, would be prepared to act not as an intermediary but as the interpreter of one nation's views to another.

No difficulties, however, are anticipated just now because of the excellent relations between Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson.

Colonel J. L. Ralston, head of the Canadian delegation, does not expect to remain in London more than a month, as he wants to be back in Ottawa by the beginning of March to attend to his Canadian political duties.

Hon. S. F. Tolmie Attains Another Milestone in Life

Hon. S. F. Tolmie celebrated his birthday yesterday, the occasion being marked by many messages of congratulation upon his attaining the age of sixty-three years. Among the greetings were a number of bouquets prominent, among them being one from his office staff in the buildings which bore along with it felicitations couched in poetic measures from the pen of Mr. James Morton. Another beautiful bouquet came from the mayor of the city, Mr. Herbert Anson.

The Prime Minister of British Columbia was born in the house where he now resides, which has been in the possession of the Tolmie family from the earliest days, being the first stone dwelling erected in what is now British Columbia.

The Prime Minister's advent was on January 25, 1867, just a few months previous to the unifying of four provinces of Canada into confederation.

MR. BELL WILL ATTEND PARLEY

Will Represent Government at Unemployment Conference in Winnipeg

Mr. Adam Bell, of Revelstoke, will leave today for Winnipeg, where he will represent the Government of British Columbia at the conference which will be called by Maybey Webb, of Winnipeg, to discuss the matter of unemployment in the Dominion.

This announcement was made yesterday by Hon. W. A. McKeen, Minister of Labor, who received a message from Mayor Webb on Friday evening asking that British Columbia name a representative to attend the conference. He was seeking to call together representative of the Dominion Government, the Governments of the various provinces and the major cities of the Dominion to consider unemployment.

The meeting is called for Wednesday, January 29, at Winnipeg. Mr. Bell, who is prominently identified with the labor union movement, was in the city at the time, being a member of the Male Minimum Wage Board. He starts at once, so as to be in the city in time for the sessions of the conference.

The Late Mr. A. Clubb

(Contributed)

On Tuesday, January 7, at his home on Mitchell Street, Oak Bay, there passed away one of the oldest residents of Victoria in the person of Mr. A. Clubb. Born in Sudbury, England, in 1847, Mr. Clubb came to Canada at the age of twenty, settling in Toronto. There he commenced business as a tobacconist, and, by industry and application, eventually built up one of the most successful wholesale and retail enterprises of his kind in this country.

A lover of music and of the Anglican Church, he sang in the choir of several of Toronto's churches; he had been a chorister from the early age of six—was a member of the first ward of St. Mary Magdalene Church. He was extremely fond of flowers, took an active interest in the work of the Toronto Horticultural Society, of which he was a past president, and was considered to be one of Toronto's best judges of roses.

Retiring from business after over forty-five years of activity, during which he was absent scarcely a day from his store, he came to Victoria about nine years ago. Joining St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, he became a member of the choir, seldom missing (except through sickness) either a choir rehearsal or a service. In October last a severe attack of bronchitis confined him to his home for a considerable period. He had, however, apparently recovered from this illness when, shortly before Christmas, serious complications set in. Suffering acutely at times, he passed peacefully away in the presence of his wife and three of his sons. The funeral service, attended by relatives, a few personal friends, and the choir, was conducted by the Rev. Canon Nunn at St. Mary's Church, after which the casket was conveyed to Toronto for entombment in the family plot at the Forest Lawn Mausoleum.

President of Provincial Association Mentions Number of Satisfactory Sales in Annual Report

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR ENSUING YEAR

The thirteenth annual general meeting of the B.C. Goat Breeders' Association was held here last evening, and re-elected Mr. H. G. Morson, of Burnaby, as president for a second term, and elected other officers as follows:

Directors—Mr. E. Carbutt, Mr. I. S. Smith, Miss Jean Harvey, Mr. T. Pearce, Mr. J. Unwin and Lieut.-Colonel J. M. Bryant.

Secretary-treasurer—George Piller, Department of Agriculture, Victoria.

Auditor—M. C. Hooper, Victoria.

In a review of last year's work the president referred with satisfaction to the many sales of high-class goats which had been made to points outside of the province. Sales had been greater than ever, and included three carloads of purebred and grade Saanens and Toggenburgs to Ontario; Saanen and Toggenburg bucks to Saskatchewan; a Nubian buck and three Nubian does and a Saanen doe to Ontario; three grade Toggenburgs and Saanens to the Yukon; a Nubian buck and four Nubian does to the United States and two Nubian does to Mexico. This is the first time British Columbia goats have been shipped to Mexico. In the case of the Nubian stock sold across the line, high prices had been obtained, $300 being secured for one doe and three figures for the others. Sales within the province had also been good, although prices had not been so well maintained, owing to cheap goats being thrown on the market by people who did not realize that it paid better to raise good stock worth a fair price.

President Morson praised the official recording of milk yields by the Dominion Department of Agriculture and hoped the work would be extended. He attributed his good sales to the fact that his goats had official records.

Publicity for goat's milk had been furthered by advertisements in the press and the distribution of many thousands of leaflets, and also through the fine new milk delivery trucks put on the road by Messrs. J. E. Richards and A. E. Ribbons, of Victoria, and J. Lambert & Son, of Powell River.

MR. D. FERRABEE DIES

Mr. Ferrabee had resided in Seattle for the past year, where he had been in business with his brother, Mr. Guy Ferrabee. Mr. Ferrabee was the son of Mrs. J. F. Ferrabee, formerly of Victoria and now residing in Berkeley, California, and the late Mr. John F. Ferrabee, of Gloucestershire, England. He is survived by three brothers and two sisters, Messrs. Guy F. Ferrabee, Stanley F. and Ivan E. Ferrabee, Miss Enid Ferrabee and Mrs. F. G. Porritt. Interment was made on January 22, in Mountain View Cemetery from the Little Chapel of the Flowers, Berkeley, Cal.

The late Mr. Ferrabee was overseas during the Great War, having been a member of the 88th Battalion, and served in France with the 7th Battalion of the 1st Division.

The Charm and Variety of Stucco

By MARGARET C. MACLURE

The growing and ever-increasing use of stucco for house exteriors is probably one of the most subtle tests that architects are now being put to, because a successful result calls for the best principles of composition and design.

The clear wall surfaces presented by this material are fatal to bad proportion, and no other building material shows up poor design so glaringly. In proof of this one has only to glance at some of the old houses that have been "stuccoed" and modernized by an outward garment of cream stucco. If it happens that the ground floor rooms have very high ceilings, the too long spaces under the second story windows give a most bleak and ungainly appearance to the whole building; also if windows have been badly grouped they show up worse than ever.

PROPER USE ESSENTIAL.
In all good architecture, the art of design is one of construction, and should be thought out through the materials and in strict accordance with the traditional methods of working them. For this reason alone it is very necessary that the proper use of a stucco or cement finish should be given special study. It is a worthwhile problem too, for the cause of its fascinating and varied possibilities.

Cement plaster and stucco have come to mean the same thing. It was indeed a good thing for house owners when this ideal material took its place in the market at a price which has made it one of the most economical and durable materials for the exterior covering of a house. Applied to frame or hollow tile it makes a warmer, drier house than either brick or stone, because it is more impervious to moisture than both, and more easily weathered. As a matter of fact, stucco houses when properly constructed are really masonry houses in as far as exterior covering is concerned.

One important thing to be careful about when building a stucco house is to see that you have the right sort of wood for "framing." Your architect will probably see that the material for "joists" is such that defective cracks will be avoided. Hemlock should never be used as a framing material; British Columbia fir, spruce or pine are best.

One very interesting feature in the use of stucco is its adaptability to color. If you happen to want it, you may have lovely tones of orange, green, mauve or madder pink for the exterior of your house. There is a wide range to choose from in color tints as well. On a cream house you may paint the trimmings green and have purple shutters, or the trim may be black with an inner line of vermilion and the gay surprise of an orange door. For quieter tastes very charming effects can be worked out in grey stucco with all the exterior woodwork rough finished and stained brown. A distinctive house of this type had overhanging balconies, reminiscent of Italy, on several of the second story windows.

Red brick, stucco and shingles can be combined very delightfully in of Africa, and sold into slavery.

News of these poor victims seldom reached home unless there was hope of a large ransom. They were as much lost to their families and friends as if they had been drowned in the sea, which was commonly supposed to have been their fate.
Their hardships and helplessness made them objects of special social effort. The institution which was to provide relief for this sad state of affairs had its rise in a typical Thirteenth Century way—what doubtless the modern world would be apt to think of as a characteristically medieval—but the result achieved was as good an example of practical benevolence as has ever been effected in the most material of centuries. Dreams and vision are at the birth of every great enterprise, so it was in the establishment of the Order for the Redemption of Captives, or, as it was called, the Trinitarians (A.D.

1198).

RANSOMING OF CAPTIVES

Shortly after the beginning of the Thirteenth Century two very intelligent men, whose friends honored them very much for the saintliness of their lives—meaning by saintliness not only their piety but their thoughtfulness for others before themselves—had a dream in which they saw poor captives held in slavery and asking someone out of Christian charity to come and ransom them. One of these men was John of Mathie, a distinguished teacher of Theology at the University of Paris. The other was Felix of Valois, more distinguished for his piety than his learning, but by no means an ignorant man. On the same night, though living at a distance from one another, they had this identical dream. Having told it next day to some friends, it happened that after a time it came to their mutual knowledge that the other had had a similar vision.

The circumstance seemed so striking to them that they applied to the Pope for an interpretation, and he, Innocent III, saw in it a magnificent opportunity for the foundation of another great Christian charity. Accordingly he directed their thoughts toward the redemption of Christian captives taken by the Saracens. The order thus established wore a white habit with a red and blue cross on the breast. They were well received in France, where they had originated, received large sums of money to be devoted to the objects of their Order, and many distinguished for their ability and profound learning flocked to their ranks. In the year 1300 the first company of ransomed captives arrived from Morocco, and their joy upon again beholding their friends and their native land can well be imagined. The members of this order were sometimes called Mathurins from the title of the first church occupied by them in Paris. They spread rapidly in Southern France, through Spain,

Italy, England, Saxony and Hungary, and foundations of a similar kind were also opened for women.
Cenobitic, in the diocese of Meaux, where the first house of the order was opened, became the residence of the General. There was a fine field for their labors in Spain, where the Moors were constantly at war with the Christians. Almost any dangers were incurred through the self-sacrificing spirit of these religious people in the accomplishment of their purpose, and their zeal aroused great interest in the poor captives. They became the accredited agents for the ransoming and exchange of prisoners, and became a source of comfort and consolation to them. Peter of Naleco, a distinguished Frenchman, and Raymond of Pennafort, famous authority on Canon Law, founded a medieval supernaturalism evolved the same practical results. In this "Ordo B. Mariae de Mercede," the members bound themselves to give their fortunes and to serve as soldiers in the cause, vowing also if necessary to make the sacrifice of their very persons as Peter actually did in Africa for the redemption of Christian captives. Their members were divided into Knights, who were a white uniform, and Brothers who took orders and provided for the spiritual needs of the community. Gregory IX, admiring the heroic devotion of these intrepid men, approved the order, and many thousands of captive Christians who would have otherwise dragged out a miserable existence as slaves

among the Mahometans of North Africa were rescued and restored to their families and a life of freedom and happiness in Europe. This was a fine practical example of Abolitionism worthy of study and admiration.

THE WONDERFUL DAILY BREAD OF SWEDEN

"The Outstanding Success of Recent Years in the Grocery Trade"

The above arresting sentence, written by a leading Glasgow Food Distributing House, to the Ryvita Company in London, about their "RYVITA CRISP-BREAD" is a truly astonishing story. The "Wonderful Daily Bread of Sweden," seemed to make a unique happening in the food world, and the leading grocers of our readers to call for a little special attention.

Investigations, seeking facts behind such a statement, reveal a truly astonishing story. The old age said, "Anybody who can make two blades of grass grow where one grew before is a benefactor of mankind." How much more of a benefactor then is a man who gives to the world a radical and fundamental revolutionizing improvement in its commonest item of food—our daily bread.

The medical profession, the whole body of food experts, and better still, the thoughtful and discriminating sections of the general public in the British Isles indicate that they have by their adoption of and regular use of "RYVITA CRISP-BREAD," shown clearly their opinion of the high food value of this new form of "daily bread."

An interview of a prominent Vancouver business man, on a recent visit to London, with Mr. J. E. Garratt, the head of the "Ryvita Company," elicited a story which sounded like a romance, but which our correspondent's subsequent investigations in Trade and Private circles in the British Isles proved to be simply and literally true.

He gives as near as he can remember them Mr. Garratt's remarks, as follows: "Will I tell you about 'RYVITA'?" With pleasure, and what a truly wonderful story it is. The astounding success of 'RYVITA' and the ever-extending trade in it, is surely one of the greatest business romances of modern times. You must understand that all my life," said Mr. Garratt, "I have been a student, in a more or less amateur way, of the scientific value of food stuffs, and all my business life I have been engaged in the sale and distribution of such things.

"Through my business dealings with and travels to Sweden, I had long known of (and used on every convenient chance) a form of bread ('Knackebrod') crisp, dry and crunchy, mastication-compelling and (in my experience) constipation-preventing, used by the people throughout Sweden as their regular daily bread. From my own knowledge and experience of this utterly different form of bread, I at last determined that I would give the British medical profession a chance of seeing it, and the British general public a chance of trying it.

"As a preliminary step I made a thorough personal investigation throughout Sweden, visiting most of the principal bakeries there, and testing and investigating their products. As a result of this investigation I found all sorts of grades and qualities of their 'Knackebrod' being made—good, middling and indifferent.

"At last, however, I found what I was looking for, the bakery producing the supreme quality make of this kind of bread in the whole of Sweden.

"Having found this bakery I worked with them for a while, and evolved finally the improved and unique product to which I have the name 'RYVITA CRISP-BREAD,' and which I took with me to England to put it before the people there for their trial.

"It may be truly said that the success of 'RYVITA' in England was immediate and immense.

"First, it was introduced through the special shop ('Ryvita Food Shops') that supply the needs of 'food reformers.' With these the sales became at once a ton or so a week. Soon, however, the doctors, food experts and the more intelligent sections of the general public discovered 'RYVITA,' and it began to be asked for by the regular grocer. Then the 'fun' began. That 'ton a week' soon became a 'ten a day.' From all sides the demands poured in upon us, till soon the call was for many more tons a day so that—whatever we could in the way of extending our Swedish bakery—we could not possibly cope with it.

"Then for a while our lot was anything but a bed of roses. For over a year (in an effort to keep going) we had to refuse to open a single new Trade Account, and to ration down one-fifth of their orders. Every Trade Buyer we had already allowed to start selling.

"Indignant Trade and Private letters poured in on us daily, demanding 'RYVITA,' and showing us that the included the finest people in the country—artists, literary people, actors and actresses, lawyers, society people right up to Royalty itself. Doctors all over the country were demanding supplies, saying 'What is the use of our starting our patients on 'RYVITA' when we cannot depend on regular supplies?'

"Oh, our poor bakery in Sweden! What with baking and building, what a time they had, and what a time we had, too, always making more and never beginning to have enough to meet the call. Romantic though it was, we would not willingly live through that year again.

"However, all that is now adjusted, and our extended baking facilities are such that we are now able not only to fill the ever-expanding demand for 'RYVITA' from the British Isles, but are at last able to entertain and fill orders from our Dominions and other countries abroad.

"Of course, a bread like 'RYVITA,' crisp, scrunchy, delicious, transportable anywhere, keeping good for a length of time if kept in a tin box, the merit of being a 'digestible' bread of life, making such troubles as indigestion, constipation, malnutrition, obesity, etc., unknown (as our user has said of it), was bound, if we made it known, to ultimately spread, as it is now doing, throughout the whole world.

"Your proudest boast is that we can now say as we do of 'RYVITA' that it was—'Born in Sweden, raised in England'—is now helping world unity by selling as daily bread everywhere on earth.

"RYVITA is now selling in very many parts of the world, through many India and the East, in Egypt, E. W. and S. Africa, South America, the European Continent, etc., etc. We are just introducing the genuine original 'RYVITA CRISP-BREAD' to the U.S.A., where several imitations of it have already appeared.

IMITATION "CRISP-BREADS"
"The stupendous success of the Genuine Original 'RYVITA CRISP-BREAD,' and the consequent demand which for long utterly exceeded the 'Ryvita Company's' power to supply, and the world-wide fame of the stupendous success, inevitably excited the cupidity of the regular imitator horde.

"Not only were all sorts of inferior

Swedish makes raked out and pushed forward as being 'as good as 'RYVITA,' but British biscuit makers also trotted out their imitations, 'Crispbreads,' 'made of Wheat'—made in England, etc., etc., and every other trick and cry to try and catch for a time in the British Isles a share of the genuine 'RYVITA CRISP-BREAD' trade.

"Exposed and beaten out in England, these 'imitation Crispbreads' had for a time a run in foreign countries, U.S.A. to India, in the Dominions, etc., until now that the genuine original 'RYVITA CRISP-BREAD' is able to get after them, and tell the public there also the actual truth about this great thing.

"Because of the stupendous home demand for the genuine original 'RYVITA CRISP-BREAD,' the 'imitation crispbread' actually arrived in some of those other countries before the genuine 'RYVITA CRISP-BREAD' could offer itself there at all. However, because of the fact that chance is now ending for 'imitation crispbread' merchants, because from now on we hope to be able to supply enough of the genuine original 'RYVITA' to meet the needs of the world."

That generally was the story told by Mr. J. E. Garratt to our Vancouver friend, Mr. Arthur Nelson, 148-150 Alexander Street, who was so impressed that he determined to first introduce the genuine 'Ryvita' into the British Columbia from where he expects its sale and use to spread throughout the Dominion.

Already 'Ryvita' (pronounced Ri-ly-ta) is being sold by most first-class grocers in Greater Victoria. If any readers are not able to obtain it, they should write to Mr. Garratt, who will be glad to supply them with their regular grocers they are invited to write to Mr. Arthur Nelson at 150 Alexander Street, Vancouver, B.C., and their requirements will be taken care of.

PRICE CONTROL IS THREATENED

Fruitgrowers of Province Want Amendments to Act to Give More Security to Producers

VERNON, Jan. 25.—The Vernon News today gives what it says are full details of the discussion of the amendments which the Committee of Direction proposes to the Produce Marketing Act.

Mr. D. McNair, sales manager of the Associated Growers, said judgment on the part of it is reasonable to expect that the operations of the jobber shippers will increase each season and if there is a big crop in 1930 that there will be such a volume as to completely wipe out the control we have had so far under the committee and the provisions of the Produce Marketing Act. There will be a complete debacle so far as the growers are concerned, it was intimated.

Operations by jobbers are not altogether new. The committee has no power to refuse licences, and they were sought by jobbers two years ago. Their operations were such in 1929, it was stated, that the Committee of Direction lost control of the marketing of onions.

Mr. R. B. Staples, manager of sales service, said this year the jobbers had come in under the provision of the maximum price set by the committee. If, as is reported, more of them operate in the same way this year, the effect would be to throw a portion of the crop out of control, it was stated.

There have been infractions of the act which may not be traceable to any shipper or group of shippers. The high prices have been set with the approval of the federation and at times these have been higher than outside conditions warranted. With the jobber shippers here, in the case of the maximum price set, control will not be effective.

Mother (after a vain attempt to get small child to sleep by singing, "Why don't you go to sleep, dear?").

Pauline: "Well, Mummy, I was waiting for you to stop singing."

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

CAN THE SCALPEL CURE?

Surgical science has progressed to such an extent that it is now possible to operate on every part of the body and live at least portions of any of the organs without producing death. Surgeons are often encouraged to perform unnecessary operations, which could have been avoided if the patient were willing to remove the real causes which were producing his trouble.

Most people are familiar with the fact that such organs as the eyes, tonsils, appendix, gall bladder and generative organs can be extirpated without death ensuing, and that the patient will live after one kidney, portions of the liver, intestines and pancreas are removed. Surgeons have even gone as far recently as to operate on the brain and take out sections of the vital organ which only a little while ago we thought could not be even touched without danger.

Surgeons have recently opened up the heart and operated upon portions of it, with the patient still living after the operation!

The reports of surgical progress which creep into the newspapers undoubtedly have the effect of making people believe that almost everything can be done with surgery.

The other day a patient whom I had just examined was telling her sister to also have an examination as a precaution to determine if any hidden disorder existed. The sister, who appeared to be a highly intelligent young woman, replied, "I'd rather wait until I am sick and then have an operation." I asked her what she expected to be operated on for, and she flippantly replied, "I should worry. I'll let the doctor find that out. I'd rather go to the hospital and be laid up for two or three weeks than to be bothered about diet." Mind you, this is not an unusual point of view, but one which I hear frequently expressed by those with whom I come in contact socially.

The publicity about people being saved by surgical operations has been so great in recent years that many people who otherwise appear quite sensible prefer to live haphazardly, but are careful to carry the telephone number of some surgeon who is famous in their locality so they can call him if suddenly

Jamaica Churches Have Made Plans For Church Unity

Father Damien's Labors for Lepers of Molakai Recalled—Centenary of Composer of Well-Known Tune Falls This Year—Half Million
Testaments Go to South America

Earl Haig Gives Father's Insignia to Youth Shrine

LIKE King Charles' head in Dickens' story it is impossible to chronicle the movements of contemporaneous Christianity without frequently mentioning the matter of church unity. The latest proposals to that end are reported from Jamaica, where a comprehensive union is being discussed that would include Baptists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Moravians and Wesleyans.

Evangelized by missions of various churches that sent their workers there about one hundred years ago, Jamaica has suffered much from an over-lapping that was inevitable in the expansion of the missions. Taking the initiative, the Presbyterians, through a deputation sent out by the United Church of Scotland five years ago, succeeded in getting together delegates from the various churches in a conference that has been meeting for the past three years. This joint committee has prepared a statement of doctrine, much on the lines of that of the South India Church, and has drafted a scheme of policy. This scheme is reported in the Scots Observer to be something of an amalgam and has not met with the unmeasured approval of the whole conference. It is being sent out to the synods of the various churches early this year for an expression of views. No church has committed itself beyond cordially sending representatives to the conference.

EARL'S INSIGNIA IN SHRINE
Taken from its place in Westminster Abbey, the Order of the Bath of the late Earl Haig was deposited in the Chambers Memorial Chapel of Edinburgh's Cathedral of St. Giles, his son, the young Earl Haig, by this gift dedicating the new Shrine of Youth there with "this banner of chivalry" of his honored father. This is the first Shrine of Youth to be set up in Scottish churches. It is a youth chapel in which the colors and insignia of the youth organizations, such as the Boys' Brigade, Scouts, Girl Guides and Sunday schools, may be deposited as symbolic of the "rightful place of youth in the Great Father's House," to quote from the letter of Dean Wainman in The Glasgow Herald. The late Earl was spoken of during the impressive service of dedication as one who was himself a valiant servant of God and his country.

FATHER DAMIEN
Of the heroes and heroines who have given themselves to the world's sad-eyed sons of leprosy, Father Damien shines as one of the brightest names. When the young Belgian priest, who was born on January 3, ninety years ago, started his sacrificial work on the Hawaiian island of Molokai in 1873, it was of all places the most desolate and miserable. The lepers were dumped there and left largely to shift for themselves. Drinking and debauchery added to the latheness of the disease which doomed them to death. An energetic and masterful man, bold and daring, he had a great influence upon his family. His sixteen years of labor produced a vast change and today, in all the other many leper settlements that have since been founded, the same change is being wrought.

More than 10,000 donors have provided for the first half-million Testaments to be sent to South American countries and Mexico under the direction of the Million Testaments Campaign of Philadelphia. Large numbers of people are reported to be without the Scriptures, one missionary pastor stating that in his district there were 40,000 people who had never seen a Bible.

CLAIM VAST SUMS OF SMELTER CO.

Amounts Totalling Millions of Dollars Asked for Damages Alleged to Be Caused by Trail Fumes

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Hundred of claims for damage to land and crops in Stevens County, Washington, from the acid fumes coming from the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company's plant at Trail, B.C., were laid today before the International Joint Commission.

Mr. F. M. Turner and Mr. John T. Raftis, attorneys representing about 600 claimants, offered testimony intended to show that all credit had been withdrawn from the affected region by the local banks, and the Federal Land Bank, and that the land of the area had no longer any real estate value. Counsel indicated that damages were being sought on the basis of the company taking the affected lands for dumping sulphuric acid.

Testimony introduced yesterday showed the acid amounted to 1,000 tons a day over the area of nearly 200,000 acres. Attorneys for the American Government indicated that the United States would make full reservations of rights for the Colville National Forest and other public lands in the area, which testimony indicated had been materially damaged.

The private claims introduced, including that of Stevens County for loss of tax revenue, amounted to several million dollars.

MANY ESCAPE IN APARTMENT FIRE

Another Rooming House Blaze in Which Tenants Have Narrow Escape From Death

VANCOUVER, Jan. 25.—Fifty persons, most of them in scanty attire, were driven into the cold streets at 10 o'clock last night when fire broke out in the Mason-Morrison Apartments, 4000 Broadway Street, and spread immediately to a row of cabins adjoining on the north side of the building. Damage by fire, smoke or water to building and property is estimated by fire officials at $20,000. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

The fire is believed to have originated in the basement of the apartment house. So suddenly did the blaze rush to the suite in the south side of the apartment house that the tenants had no opportunity to seize any of their valuables or dress themselves. A number had retired and were only able to throw on coats over their night attire before hurrying to the main stairway and to the streets.

Dr. Plaskett to Speak
On Tuesday evening at Victoria College, Dr. J. S. Plaskett is to give an illustrated address on his most recent work on the rotation of the stellar universe. The lecture is of special interest, both because of the high honors recently conferred on Dr. Plaskett and because of the remarkable character of the results of investigation made by him at the Saanich Observatory. These investigations have shown that the stellar universe is a disc-shaped aggregation of stars rotating about an axis at right angles to the plane of the Milky Way. The nature of the evidence for the existence of this rotation will be explained by the lecturer.

"My skin trouble started with pimples and red blotches that affected my face, neck, hands and head. The pimples were hard, large and red, and floured and scaled over, causing disfigurement. They also caused severe itching and burning, and I could not sleep at night with the pain. The trouble lasted about two months.

"I tried several other remedies which did not give me any relief, but began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me after a few applications, and in two weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Marie Gibson, Huggett, Alberta.

If Husbands Are Earners of Wage Women Are Out

WINNIPEG, Jan. 25.—No married women, whose husbands are wage earners, will be employed by the Manitoba Government, Mr. O. M. McCann, civil service commissioner, acting on Cabinet instructions, has notified all departments of the Provincial Government to this effect.

This new order will be the basis of the future policy of the Government with respect to its civil service. In cases where it is found that a married woman is responsible for the support of dependents, the rule will not apply.

"There is no intention of creating any hardship on anyone," Mr. McCann stated, "but under this policy there will no longer be any opening for criticism, so often leveled, of employing married women who do not need to work."

Yet it is sufficient to justify a passing note on the Centenary of Alexander Ewing, the composer of doctrine, much on the lines of that of the South India Church, and has drafted a scheme of policy. This scheme is reported in the Scots Observer to be something of an amalgam and has not met with the unmeasured approval of the whole conference. It is being sent out to the synods of the various churches early this year for an expression of views. No church has committed itself beyond cordially sending representatives to the conference.

Amounts Totalling Millions of Dollars Asked for Damages Alleged to Be Caused by Trail Fumes

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Hundred of claims for damage to land and crops in Stevens County, Washington, from the acid fumes coming from the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company's plant at Trail, B.C., were laid today before the International Joint Commission.

Mr. F. M. Turner and Mr. John T. Raftis, attorneys representing about 600 claimants, offered testimony intended to show that all credit had been withdrawn from the affected region by the local banks, and the Federal Land Bank, and that the land of the area had no longer any real estate value. Counsel indicated that damages were being sought on the basis of the company taking the affected lands for dumping sulphuric acid.

Testimony introduced yesterday showed the acid amounted to 1,000 tons a day over the area of nearly 200,000 acres. Attorneys for the American Government indicated that the United States would make full reservations of rights for the Colville National Forest and other public lands in the area, which testimony indicated had been materially damaged.

The private claims introduced, including that of Stevens County for loss of tax revenue, amounted to several million dollars.

MR. EULER NOT FAVORING FREE TRADE HE SAYS

Declares He Is Not Free

TARIFF UNCHANGED FOR MANY YEARS

(Canadian Press)
BRANTFORD, Ont., Jan. 25.—"I am not a free trader, nor do I think that free trade could be the practice in Canada today," declared Hon. D. W. Euler, Minister of National Revenue, at a Liberal banquet here last night.

"Free trade is all right in theory if the countries did not erect impassable tariff walls about them. I am not afraid to say and use the word. That in a country which is excluded from the markets of any other country the tariff may legitimately be used in a reasonable way to protect the rights of the consumers and also for protecting the industries of that country so that these industries may have a right to their own market."

Mr. Euler declared there had been practically no change in the tariff in the past number of years. The complications of the tariff were such that no one Cabinet minister could study them to make general changes in the interest of whole country, hence the Tariff Advisory Board had been created in order to examine the whole situation and present information to the Government in the light of which intelligent adjustments could be made.

The occasion of Mr. Euler's address was a banquet in honor of the Ontario ministers in the Federal Cabinet. Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Public Works, also spoke.

Mr. Elliott deprecated the "climax" for a national conference on unemployment and asserted that the responsibility for dealing with it lay with the municipalities.

Progressively, if the municipalities could not deal with it, then the provinces should assist. If the situation was still too large, then it was the duty of the Federal Government to render aid. He declared that the Trade and Labor Commission was opposed to a national conference on this matter.

In connection with taxation, Mr. Euler declared that he was betraying no confidence when he said that at the forthcoming session of Parliament there would be a further reduction in the sales tax by 50 per cent.

Could Not Eat or Sleep After Husband's Death

Her husband's death left her very run down in health, unable to eat or sleep much. Now she is brighter in spirits and eats and sleeps well. What caused the difference? Let her answer in her own words:

"I think Kruschen Salts are a splendid tonic. After my husband's death in December last I became very run down in health. Had terrible fits of depression and was unable to eat or sleep much. I was also troubled with rheumatism. I decided to take Kruschen Salts and have now taken the little daily dose for nearly two months, during which time my health has greatly improved. The rheumatism has completely left me. I am much brighter in spirits and both eat and sleep well."

SOUND AUCTION and CONTRACT by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD The World's Greatest Authority

Would You or Would You Not, With South's Hand, Pass North's One No Trump?

One of the most puzzling hands to know what to do with is that held by South. In the Duplicate Contract game in which this hand arose, I held the South hand.

Salient Points of the Bidding: Auction—South and West passing, North, with 3 ♠ Quick Tricks, stoppers in all four suits and double stoppers in three of the four, bids one No Trump. East passing, South, with a 4-4-4-1 distribution, took out with two Spades to search out the Club situation before permitting partner to play the hand at No Trump. West passing, North bids

Two No Trumps, concluding the bidding. Contract—In Contract, South (the writer) and West passing, North opened with one No Trump, which, East passing, South took out with two Spades. West passing, North bid two No Trumps, whereupon South feeling fairly confident that North held the Club suit doubly stopped, bid three No Trumps, his values in the other suits sufficient to assist partner's bid.

The Play: Spades having been bid by South, East opens his fourth best Diamond, the Two. The Dummy going down, North plays from Dummy the Four of Diamonds, West the Eight, as he holds the 10-8 tenace over the Nine in Dummy, and North, the Jack. With but one sure entry in Dummy, the King of Diamonds, North concedes the King of Hearts by laying down the Ace followed by the Jack. East refuses to cover the second round, as North may not hold a third Heart. North, however, leads a third Heart, which East wins with the King. East, finding the Diamond situation untenable to continue, shifts to his Two of Spades, hoping to find partner with same strength in that suit, as North has denied South's Spade take-out. North plays the Seven of Spades from Dummy. West the Jack and North wins with the King. North pauses at this point to count the two hands. He figures his positive tricks to be three Spades, three Hearts, three Diamonds (possibly four) and one Club trick. He next leads the Nine of Spades, which West refuses to cover, and follows with the Four, East winning with the Ace, and in desperation shifting to the King of Clubs, which North wins with the Ace. He then lays down the Ace of Diamonds, dropping West's Ten, and continues with the Three, finessing the Nine in Dummy, thus making the remaining tricks.

ABOUT THE STOCK EXCHANGE

A STOCK EXCHANGE is essentially a Public Service doing its best to make trading secure and efficient.

While this work has far-reaching results, the first principles of operation are simple. Somebody gives a broker an order. By cable or phone the broker's "floor"-man gets the order for execution. The price paid for the stock is the official quotation on the "floor" at exactly that time. The seller writes a triplicate record of the transaction, timed mechanically to within a tenth-second. Buyer, seller and Exchange each retain one copy. So every sale is permanently recorded and made known on the ticker.

Stock prices on the floor of the Exchange are controlled by orders received from the Public to buy and sell. The Exchange exercises no control over fluctuations. Like a loud-speaker it simply broadcasts the trading minute by minute. Regulations governing trading were accepted by the Provincial Parliament in session in 1907. No trading can take place between members off the "floor." The Stock Exchange itself has nothing to do with arrangements between brokers and clients. Being members of the Exchange, brokers are directly servants of the investing Public.

PIONEERING HAS NEW PROBLEMS

Settlers Have Many Demands on Science, Dr. R. C. Wallace Says

The new problems of pioneering in Canada as carried out today, its new scope, ranging as it does from the subjects of an address by Dr. Robert Charles Wallace, president of the University of Alberta, speaking before the members of the Canadian Club at luncheon in the Windsor Hotel, Montreal.

He compared the pioneer of twenty years ago with his successor of today, showing that the simple, plain pioneer of the bushland, who cut himself a clearing in the bush as near to railway transportation as he could get, had given place to a type of farming pioneer who went a hundred miles from the railway, avoiding the thick bush and seeking an open space in the middle of the bush, in which his steam plow and his up-to-date apparatus he could have a hundred acres under crops within a year. The pioneer

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM

One of the big problems which science and industry had to face was how to get adequate transportation facilities to the new type of pioneers who were pushing hundreds of miles away from the railways. Rail transportation could not do it. Something better would have to be found.

Pioneering was not confined to farming, although the way in which the farm pioneer was pushing up into, for instance, the Peace River country, was inspiring. There was airplane pioneering carrying civilization's advance guards into the Far North. And there were the most northerly lines of general population. These young men were handling great national problems, at the age of 22 to 24, with a conservative solidity deserving of much admiration, and were making a great contribution to Canada's development.

A hundred years hence, however, of today was a pioneer who was able to accomplish much, but he made great demands, he demanded railways, good roads, telephone and telegraph services, and the nation had to find means to meet his demands.

There were not lacking signs that such pioneering was in progress. The scientist did his share in helping provide the leisure and wealth to enable the artist and poet to do his part, but the latter needed to be encouraged to make his art truly Canadian and truly pioneer.

M. A. Schapiro, the chess champion, said at a dinner in New York. "There's a story about that active, gloomy, silent room, and nobody paid much attention to them. On and on they played."

"Well, a waiter happened to pass through the room and one of the players beckoned to him. 'Waiter,' he said, 'will you please remove my opponent. I fear he has been dead for some day.'"

Italian Exhibition the Week's Great Topic—A Wonderful Collection of Art Treasures—The Carillon in Hyde Park and the Art of Bell Ringing—Arts Club Rowdiness and English Cooking

By ELIZABETH MONTIZAMBERT

The one great topic of the week is the Italian exhibition. It has opened in a warm blaze of popularity, and the two previous exhibitions of Dutch and Flemish art have taught the public to appreciate the exceptional luck of being able to see together in one building so many masterpieces, usually scattered all over the world, many of them in private collections not generally accessible to the public.

I understand that there has been indeed a real "embarras de richesses." Even as late as the opening day I heard someone offering to Signor Modigliani another treasure from some private collection. How profitable were those grand tours, taken in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries by Englishmen of fashion and rank, is now discerned on the walls of Burlington House, for, of the five hundred or so pictures shown, not less than forty-one come from the collections of English noblemen. Eight canvases come from His Majesty's collection at Buckingham Palace, over sixty from private owners and thirty-seven from museums in the British Isles and Canada.

Of the latter it is interesting to note that Scotland heads the list with ten pictures, Liverpool sending seven and Ireland four. The Canada National Gallery sent Botticelli's charming little heads of the infant Christ and the Little St. John the Baptist. Carliani's "Portrait of a Man" and Tintoret's portrait of his servant.

One heard amusing differences of opinion about the celebrated "Tempest" by Giorgione, that Prince Giovannelli was persuaded to lend with so much difficulty and only on the promise of an abnormal rate of insurance, raised, I believe, by subscription. Many people said frankly that they infinitely preferred the near-by "Trial of Moses" by the same great artist, where he has painted in soft glowing color the scene of Pharaoh watching to see if the infant Moses will choose to put out his hand to the plate of gold or that of embers, and so decide his fate.

But the connoisseurs were composing panegyrics over "The Tempest," with its stormy sky in the background, and in the foreground a young woman who appears to have discarded all clothing but a white silk cape while she nurses her child, while a soldier leans on a staff at some distance with the air of having nothing to do with them.

It is not possible to give any adequate idea of the extraordinary loveliness of this collection. It is possible, since pictures too are subject to the vagaries of fashion, that there will be a recrudescence of interest in religious pictures.

CALM AND BENIGNANT

There is something so calm and benignant about these exquisite Madonnas of the Florentine and Ven-

British Scion Mends China

THIS wandering scion of one of Britain's most famous families, Mr. William St. John Cooper, mends thoughtfully over affairs "back home" as he happily pursues his craft of mending china at Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Cooper has just been revealed as a brother of Lady Pearson, famous British actress, known on the stage as Gladys Cooper. He himself, however, has preferred to spend his time accumulating priceless experiences in all corners of the world.

Christian artists, seated in their lovely robes against pale gold backgrounds and, in a way, they seem curiously modern. Sir Nigel Playfair told me that he once asked the late Lovat Fraser to dress a Shakespearean play for him and that when that brilliant designer went to the Florentine primitives for his inspiration, many people grumbled that they were the last word in Futurism!

Another great attraction lies in the portraits, especially the Titian's and those by Moroni. Gallery III has an unfair share of the most famous, with Raphael's "Donna Velata," the veiled lady with her voluminous sleeve and scarf over her head, and the portraits of Angelo and Maddalena, but I like best his picture of an unnamed lady. In the same room are the magnificent Veronese portrait of Count Giuseppe Porto and his son, and Titian's adorable portrait of an unnamed Englishman, whom some people think was not an Englishman at all. Lord Harwood's famous Diana and Actaeon is here, too, and the marvelous Venetian Family by Titian that one is glad to know was lately bought by the National Gallery from the Duke of Northumberland.

The Titian portrait I like best is one supposed, with some uncertainty, to be of Pope Paul III, an old, white-bearded man with an air of impenetrable sadness, seated in a red velvet arm chair and wearing over his white robes an ermine-bordered cape of a lovely shade of faded wine color. There are all sorts of surprises in this collection. Even the celebrated Venus of Botticelli takes on a different air since she left the walls of the Uffizi Gallery in Florence, where she had hung for over a hundred years, and looking at the fresh, brilliant coloring of the goddess as she stands so lightly on her seashell, it is difficult to realize that Botticelli painted her for those great art lovers, Lorenzo and Giovanni di Medici, nearly four hundred and fifty years ago.

I found another surprise in the Guido Reni "Portrait of His Mother," because I had always shared the opinion of Mr. Konody, the well-known art critic, that Guido Reni is almost repulsively sentimental. There isn't anything sentimental about his picture of this stern, dignified old lady with a beautiful face, and it is a revelation to people who have only known the chocolate-box productions of this artist.

Mantegna, too, that "Old Roman in Art" shows another side of his inventive genius in his "Dead

SITUATION IN BRAZIL BETTER

Country Has Vast and Varied Resources, Says National City Bank in Monthly Letter

COFFEE STILL CHIEF EXPORT

Brazil is a country of vast and varied resources, and the coffee episode, while embarrassing for the time, will direct the development into other fields and upon a more certain basis says the National City Bank of New York in its current Monthly Letter. She has come through worse crises than this one, and her affairs are in the hands of able and patriotic men. With her leading industry placed upon a basis which will command confidence at home and abroad, the present state of confusion in her economic affairs will soon give way to orderly progress.

The coffee situation, says the Letter, is still in great confusion. The Coffee Institute still functions and in view of its recent success in obtaining an additional loan of approximately $10,000,000 may be assumed to be in a position to continue the direction of Brazilian coffee affairs, but it has made a very substantial price reduction.

A MOTHER'S PRAYER

At a school in a small mining town a teacher was speaking to a class of five-year-olds on their attitude at prayer time.

"When you kneel down," she said in her most reverent tone, "you should close your eyes and fold your hands."

She was about to read a child's prayer when a small voice piped, "Please, teacher, mother don't fold her hands nor shut her eyes when she prays."

The teacher hesitated, but before she could reply the voice continued, "She just looks at father and says, 'God bless every poor 'oman as a-got a mon like theel!'" dealers to buy freely, therefore helping the Coffee Institute to carry the present load, as in 1927-28, but the trade has become more skeptical than ever of the practicability of price-stabilization at the level of the past year.

The announcement of the new $2,000,000 loan by the London bankers states that "the London bankers of the Sao Paulo Government who have given this credit have satisfied themselves... that the Government is now engaged in working on a comprehensive scheme to deal with the present situation with a view to facilitating the gradual liquidation of the large accumulations of coffee stocks in the interior."

This indicates that the price reduction is part of a fundamental change of policy. The coffee authorities never have believed that a lower price would materially increase consumption, or that anything could be gained by trying to force distribution.

COFFEE INSTITUTE
The Coffee Institute operates upon a plan which differs from former valorization operations, in that it does not buy coffee. The plan is to stabilize the price by regulating the flow of coffee from the interior to the central markets. Concentration warehouses are provided at railway points, into which coffee is received and in which it must remain until released for shipment to the ports, which is done in chronological order, corresponding to the dates when received at the warehouses. It is released only as required in the markets to meet the demand for export and consumption.

The coffee moves in a continuous stream to the ports, and the workings of the system would be satisfactory enough but for the fact that warehouse stocks are increasing, the volume of indebtedness is increasing and foreign bankers whose aid is essential are increasingly critical of the situation. Moreover, the increasing delay before coffee reaches the market is a serious factor of cost to the producer. Coffee now reaching the ports entered the warehouses in the summer of 1928. Coffee-growing is an old industry

Modernizing Is Always Seasonable

HOUSE SEVERAL DECADES OLD IS RENOVATED

Remarkable Results Are Obtained in Remodelling Farmhouse Without Modern Conveniences

CLEANLINESS IS STIMULATED

The picture below is good evidence that houses built several decades ago can be modernized successfully. Cast your eyes at this picture and see for yourself the costumes on the group in the foreground. The leg of mutton sleeves and basques of the ladies and the old horse and buggy in the middle ground speak of by-gone days.

The homestead appears as it was years ago. In those days it was a substantial, well-built house, painted at regular intervals and receiving proper care.

But with the passing of time, it grew old. New conveniences were introduced to the people and generally accepted by them. These comforts were denied the occupants of the old house, for somehow or other they never got around to installing them.

NOW MODERNIZED

Today the old homestead has been modernized. It is now one of the up-to-date homes of the countryside. The good substantial old lines have been slightly changed, a side porch of Colonial motif has been added, and a wide front porch now graces one end of the main structure.

New windows supersede the old time narrow sash. The upstairs windows on the sun side of the house are equipped with shutters which may be closed on hot summer days.

When the new porch had been placed on the end of the house a pair of French doors with many small lights were installed. These lead to a modernized living-room.

GREATEST CHANGE INSIDE

Perhaps the greatest change has taken place within the old homestead. Like most old-time houses, the accessories were out of date and decidedly obsolete. A modern farm lighting system now provides electric lights throughout the interior. The family can have all of the comforts of the minute as expressed electrically. Floor lamps, electric washing machines, vacuum cleaners, toasters and percolators are in everyday use. The installation of a modern septic tank down the hill enables a modern bathroom to be installed. Here are found running water and a delightful shower, so that the men folk can cleanse themselves after a hard day in the fields.

Not only in town, but also in the country are many old homesteads that need modernizing.

There is big money in Wall Street for anyone who knows how to play the market, and Beethoven's sonatas are on any piano if you just happen to hit the right notes.

Modern Kitchen Is Convenient As Workshop

Plumbers recommend sinks made of one piece, including the back, because of their sanitary features. Many housewives when purchasing new kitchen equipment insist that the sink will be high enough to allow them to work without bending their backs when washing the dishes. Many sinks in the older kitchens were entirely too low.

Tinted enamel may now be secured in sinks so that the color scheme may be carried out in this equipment.

The cooking stove should be handily located with reference to the sink and work table. Nowadays when color is the vogue, the stove also comes in gay colors such as red and green, thus permitting the decorative ideal to be carried out still further.

Whether the refrigerator should be within the kitchen or in an entryway depends on local conditions. It must be handily located to save steps. When ice is used, the refrigerator should be near the door to prevent tracking of dirt into the house.

Many city apartments are provided with outdoor ices, the ice being inserted into the box through a door in the outside wall. The ice-man does not enter the kitchen at all. The refrigerator is, of course, provided with a door matching the

Brick Construction Offers Advantages

The use of brick veneer in the modernization of the house offers many advantages that are not found in other types of construction. The brick veneered home, no matter how small, has an atmosphere of dignity and worth that often is not found in frame or in stucco. It looks expensive, although often its cost is comparable with wood.

With brick the home owner can get the widest choice in color tones, both in artistic blends and in uniform shades. The charming textures in brick meet every taste, no matter how exacting.

One of the material advantages of brick construction is its fire-resisting abilities. Since about 25 per cent of all fires originate without, this point is one worthy of consideration. These fireproof qualities are reflected in lower insurance rates, for the surface that will resist fire merits the approval of the insurance underwriters.

Another point of advantage that is mentioned in connection with brick is the lessened heating cost in winter and more comfort the year round. Lessened heating cost because brick is wind-tight and keeps the warm air within. During the hot summer months brick veneering prevents the fierce outside heat from penetrating the house.

They started off for London next day. On arrival there he left her at the little Bloomsbury hotel and went off to have an interview with Vance Mand. Cupolis might have lost the investors' money at play, but he was not accepting that as the whole truth just yet.

Mand was now Sir Hiram Goerge's secretary, and the baronet, who had made his money in tin tacks, lived in Grosvenor Square.

Sir Hiram had many friends, myriads of acquaintances, and thousands of hangers-on, who bowed down before the living image of the Croesus. So Mand found ample scope for his energies in dealing with the immense social correspondence, the invitations to dances, at homes and entertainments attended by these mobs, not to speak of the charitable appeals that, mountainous at Tendon Oaks, formed whole ranges at Grosvenor Square.

When a man servant had let Cobham into the house, and a second had gone to see if Mand was at liberty, Cobham was shown into a study. Here Mand sat at a table, snowed under with letters, bills, programmes and other oddments thrown up by the whirlpool of society. He rose, smiled welcome, and asked Cobham to sit down.

"I don't agree with the newspaper's suicide theory," he said when they had chatted for a few minutes. "But I suppose your chief had to give out the clew and the press invented the rest. Cupolis never showed me the grapple, but I believe he must have had it in an outhouse, from which the murderer stole it."

Cobham nodded. "It's nice to find some one who agrees with me, sir. But I really came to ask you a question about this alleged gambling. Mrs. Hasen, as you no doubt have seen in the papers, says she saw Cupolis losing money fast at Monte Carlo." He produced a written note and passed it over.

"These are the dates. I understood from you he was at Mentone some months ago. But Mentone is one place and Monte another. I'll be glad if you can tell me if he was there between the dates I have marked here?"

Mand stared at the paper and reflected. "I can't say offhand. I think not. But if you will wait a moment I will go upstairs and get a notebook I kept."

Cobham assented, Mand went off and returned in a few minutes. "That's odd," he said. "Cupolis was not in Mentone at that time, but he was certainly not at home. He went away for a fortnight and asked that his correspondence should not be forwarded."

Cobham started. "Really, sir. Did he say where he was?"

Burgess Bedtime Stories

The Broken Limb

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

"It's the ones who succeed, and they only, who say you will find with a will there is always a way."

—Old Mother Nature.

There is very little that Chatterer the Red Squirrel misses. Those bright eyes of his take note of everything. I know of no sharper eyes, unless possibly the eyes of Sammy Jay are sharper. So you may be sure that Chatterer notices every little thing. It happened that there had been a severe windstorm. All through the Green Forest twigs and small branches had been broken from the trees. The same thing had happened to some of the trees around Farmer Brown's house. You see, at the time of the wind there had been ice on the trees and this had made the twigs and limbs very brittle.

Now, over near the corncrib was a maple tree. Some of the branches spread partly over the roof of the corncrib, but they were high above it. During this windstorm one of these branches broke. It didn't break off clean. The bark and some long fibers held it from breaking off wholly. Thus it hung down and the tip of it as it hung this way was just a few feet above the roof of the corncrib.

Chatterer had gone over early one morning to see if he could find any grains of corn around the corncrib. Sometimes Farmer Brown's Boy would spill a few grains. Chatterer never failed to look up to see if by any chance that clothesline had been put back from the top of the clothespost to a corner of the corncrib. Always he has a feeling of disappointment when he discovered that it hadn't been. Sometimes he would even climb up to the top of the clothespost. On this particular morning Chatterer found no corn. He was just about to go back home when he discovered Black Pussy the Cat, and at the same time Black Pussy discovered him. The nearest place of safety was that tree with the broken limb. Chatterer scampered up this and from a comfortable seat in a crotch high up he looked down and accosted Black Pussy. Black Pussy didn't climb the tree. She knew from bitter experience that she couldn't get around in a tree as Chatterer could, so it would be useless to climb after him. Having nothing else to do, however, she sat down at the foot of the tree and glared up at Chatterer. She would keep him up there for a while anyway.

After a while Chatterer grew tired of Chatterer's nature to sit still very long at a time. He began to explore the tree. He climbed all over it. He went 'way up to the top. He went 'way down on the twigs of some of the big branches. He even sampled a Winter bud or two. So it was that presently he discovered that broken limb. He didn't pay much attention to it at first. It didn't interest him particularly. And then he just happened to notice that that limb hung down over the corn crib.

For a few moments Chatterer sat very still. There was an intent look in his bright eyes. Once or twice he scratched his nose thoughtfully. Now and then he jerked his tail slightly. All the time he was studying that broken branch. Finally he shifted his position. He went out where he could look at it from a different direction. He leaned over and looked down on the roof of the corncrib. He went back and examined the place where the broken limb was still attached to the tree. His eyes snapped with satisfaction when he saw that it would take considerable to break that limb wholly off. His weight on it wouldn't amount to anything. Carefully he crept down until he was 'way to the tip of that branch. Then he looked down on the roof of the corncrib. "I can do it," said Chatterer triumphantly. "I can do it."

The next story: "Back in the Corncrib."

Needless Pain!

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. Lots of suffering is, indeed, quite needless. Headaches, for example. They come without warning, but one can always be prepared. Aspirin tablets bring prompt relief. Keep a bottle in the office. Carry the small tin in your pocket. Then you won't have to hunt a drugstore, or wait till you get home.

And do not think that Aspirin is only good for headaches, sore throats, and colds. Read the proven directions for relieving neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatic and other aches and pains. Remembering, of course, that the quick comfort from these tablets is a cure; for any continued pain, see a doctor.

Purchase genuine Aspirin. Protect yourself by looking for that name. Always the same. Always safe. Never hurts the heart.

ASPIRIN

TRADE MARK REG.

Mand nodded. "He said, I think that he was going yachting with some fellow—nothing more definite than that."

Cobham smiled. "Might it not be that he went over to Mentone, all the same, though he did not tell you? It is quite possible he did not want people to know where he was."

Mand stared. "Perhaps you are right. I wondered if you were going to say he went yachting with Mr. Merton."

"Ah," said Cobham, starting again. "I'll keep that idea in mind, sir. I never thought of that."

Mand had quite enough to do, so Cobham did not encroach on his time any further, but went home, after paying a private call on a man in an office at Southampton Row.

When he had heard of the chief constable's interview and decision, he had returned the borrowed chair to Merton's room at Tendon Oaks.

"Mand said, or thought, it might be Merton's yacht he went on," he mused as he got out of the train at Hindon. "I don't think that much of a shot after all."

He returned to his wife, told her to put on her things, and surprised her vastly by taking her to the offices of a well-known tourist agency.

"I have a little surprise for you, my dear," he said to her as they entered the tourist office. "We're on our own now, and you have never been abroad. So I propose to take a little trip to the Riviera and spend a few days there."

She opened her eyes. "Where?"

At Mentone, my dear."

But what that was very expensive?" she objected.

"It will be worth it," said her husband. "This is where we get our tickets."

HIGH SCHOOL IS TO PRESENT PLAY

Matriculation Class Will Perform Sir J. M. Barrie's "A Kiss for Cinderella" in March

The 1929-30 matriculation class of the Victoria High School is preparing its annual play in the school auditorium on the evenings of March 21 and 22.

This year the school has once more deviated from its regular custom of presenting a play of Shakespeare. Following the precedent set last year, it is giving J. M. Barrie's delightful comedy, "A Kiss for Cinderella." This bit of drama, as its title indicates, deals with that person so well known in fairy tales Cinderella. Here she is seen in a modern setting, but with fairy godmothers, glass slippers and all, presented in Barrie's inimitable way.

The cast for the play has been chosen entirely from among the matriculation class of this year, and a talented group of young actors has been attained. This play is the last bow of the senior year to the school, and they are working hard to attain a record never before achieved.
